Feminist Economics

Panelists:

Julie A. Nelson, Economics, University of Massachusetts Boston
Eileen Boris, Feminist Studies, University of California Santa Barbara
Diana Strassmann, Center for Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies, Rice University

Moderator:

Aidan Beatty, PhD Candidate in History, University of Chicago

This panel seeks to provide a forum for discussing the inorganic and constructed nature of many of the central concepts of modern economic thought, such as rationality, the absolute right to private property, the distinction between ‘valuable’ waged labour and unwaged housework, etc., as well as providing a feminist critique of these concepts.
