The phonetic values of the signs L.175 <la>, L.319 <la/i>, L.172 <lá/í>

in Iron Age Luwian

Petra M. Goedegebuure

XII. Uluslararası Hititoloji Kongresi

İstanbul, September 6, 2023

Introduction

The la signs

1. Rieken and Yakubovich (2010): L.319 and L172 shouldn't be read as <ta₄> and <ta₅> but <la/i> and <lá/í>, respectively.
2. # of /t/ signs decreased from <ta>, <tá>, <tà>, <ta₄> and <ta₅>, # of lateral signs increased to at least: <la>, , <la/i>, <lá/í>, <la/i/u>
3. Not a problem: ca. 10 different signs for /wa/i/
4. <la/i>, <lá/í>: non-geminate /l/. (1) Bronze Age cuneiform names with non-geminate /l/ (1 exception); used for Iron Age /r/ and /d/

Rieken E. – Yakubovich I., “The New Values of Luwian Signs L 319 and L 172 ”,
in: Fs Hawkins 199-219

Introduction II

The la signs

1. Luwian contains the derivational morphemes /alla/ forming agent nouns and possessive /alla/i/ ‘pertaining to’
2. <la/i> and <lá/i> are never used to represent these morphemes. Only option: use <la>.
3. But does that imply that <la> only represents geminate /ll/, or can it cover both /l/ and /ll/?

Rieken E. – Yakubovich I., “The New Values of Luwian Signs L 319 and L 172 ”,
in: Fs Hawkins 199-219

<la> in /ila/

Lexemes

/hilana-/ ‘gate (house)’ (always written with PORTA). Hitt. hila-

/zila/ ‘then’. Also shows rhotacism, and spelling with <tà>. Cun.Luw. zila

/isarwila/i-/ ‘right’. Cun.Luw. isarwila/i-

Examples

PORTA-la-na-ri+i (KARATEPE 1 § 63 Hu.)

zi-la (KARKAMIŠ A6 § 15)

Introduction III

The la signs

- So, we might expect the following distribution for /ala/ and /alla/ sequences:

	<la>	<la/i>	<lá/í>
/ala/	x	x	x
/alla/	x	—	—

- But this has never been confirmed to my knowledge, and we should also explore the following distribution:

	<la>	<la/i>	<lá/í>
/ala/	—	x	x
/alla/	x	—	—

Introduction IV - claim

The la signs

- I will argue here that the latter is correct.

	<la>	<la/i>	<lá/í>
/ala/	—	x	x
/alla/	x	—	—

<la> marks gemination when preceded by /a/ but not in other environments. This may have to do with the development of the script: L.319 <la/i> (< Empire L.416) and L.172 <lá/í> originally represented /li/ (Hawkins 1995: 26-28) and /ala/ (Rieken & Yakubovich 2010: 200), respectively.

In the Iron Age scribal tradition these signs must have been chosen to spell all /ala/ (some /a(l)i/, and some /li/) sequences, pressing <la> into the service of writing /l/ when preceded by /a/.

<la/i> and <lá/í> in /ala/

Lexemes

/attuwal-/ ‘evil’ (subst). Cun.Luw.

ādduwāl- (also /attuwalahid-/ and /attuwalastr-/)

/alaman/ ‘name’. (1) Non-geminate because of rhotacism. (2) With Melchert 2019: 357 n. 2 dissimilated form of *anaman-. Twice spelled with <la>

/alunni-/ ‘enemy’. (1) Non-geminate because of rhotacism. (2) Cun.Luw. āla/i- ‘distant’

/alun(na)-/ ‘enmity?’ Non-geminate because of rhotacism.

Examples

MALUS-la/i-ti (ADİYAMAN 1 § 3)

MALUS-lá/í-sa-tara/i-ti

*a-la/i-ní-zi (TELL AHMAR 6 § 5)

á-lá/í-na (TELL AHMAR 2 § 20)

<la/i> and <lá/í> as /d/, /r/

Lexemes

/da/ spelled with <lá/í>

/ara/ ‘right’, /aru/ ‘highly’, /arraya-/
‘long’

/arlunna/i-/ ‘dweller?’ (not ‘enemy’?), derivation of /arla-/ ‘place’ (once spelled á-lá/í-la-za in KARKAMIŠ A15b § 16)?

Apparent exception: /wala-/ ‘to die’

/wala/ ‘fatally’, /wala-/ ‘to die’

1. (1) Cun.Luw. u(wa)lant-, ulant-, (2) rhotacism ⇒ not geminate!
2. But: always written with <la> (10x)
3. eDiAna suggests reading /wla-/ (and /wra-/?)
4. Indeed! Cluster /rla/ almost always spelled with <la> (21x) (versus /hutarli-/, spelled with <la/i> and <lá/í>)
5. Clusters /IX/, /Xla/ are written with <la>

Bauer, Anna, Yakubovich, Ilya, Sasseville, David, Steer, Thomas (2023): Proto-Luwic *lō-/*l- (eDiAna-ID 1046). In: eDiAna. (URL: <http://www.ediana.gwi.uni-muenchen.de/dictionary.php?lemma=1046> last visited on 24/08/2023.)

Apparent exception: /lal(l)a-/ ‘to take’

/lal(l)a-/ ‘to take’, reduplication of /la-/ ‘to take’

1. Cun.Luw. lala- ‘to take’, not geminate!
2. But: always written with <la> (3x), which implies /lalla-/ ‘to take’
3. Would be same phenomenon as /tatta-/ <ta-ta-> ‘to stand out’ </ta-/ ‘to stand’.
4. Other reduplicated verbs in Cun.Luw. show ‘gemination’: pa-ppaša-, za-zzara(i)-.
5. ⇒ I opt for /lalla-/, with <la> correctly employed for /ll/

Problem!

/walla-/ ‘to remove; smash’

1. Spelled with <la>: “MALLEUS”-la-i; |MALLEUS-la-i;
| (“MALLEUS”) AVIS (=wa_x)-la-i; (“MALLEUS”)*71-la-i
2. Read as /walla-/, cogn. Hitt. wallanu- ‘to erase’ (Goedegebuure 2019).
Use of <la> would confirm this.
3. But! Rhotacism in (MALLEUS)*71+ra/i-i (MARAS 8 §12)
4. Used elsewhere as diagnostic for non-geminate /l/
5. Solution 1: <la> preceded by /a/ not geminate after all.

4. Used elsewhere as diagnostic for non-geminate /l/
5. ~~Solution 1: <la> preceded by /a/ not geminate after all.~~
6. Solution 2: scribe made a mistake

No problem?

/wla-/ ‘to remove; smash’

1. Solution 3: not /walla-/ but /wla-/, like /wla-/ ‘to die’.
2. For connection between Hitt. wallanu- and /wla-/ ‘to die’ see HEG W 239-41.
3. /wla-/ < PLuw. ulō-/ul-' < PAnat. ulóH-/ulH-'* ← uólH-/ulH-'* (Bauer et al. 2023)
4. /walla-/ < PAnat. uólH-/ulH-'* (Bauer, Sasseville 2023). So: /wla-/ instead?
5. How about: the same labile verb? Intransitive ‘to die’, transitive ‘to kill a name (by smashing)?’ But why then /wlanu-/ ‘cause to die’?

Consequences of <la/i> <lá/í> as /ala/

/alant-/ ‘place’ (23 tokens) and related lexemes

/alant-/ ‘place’, written with <la/i>, <lá/í>: confirms non-geminate /l/, as already proposed by Payne, Bauer 2023 based on “DOMUS.LOCUS”-tà-ta-la-si-[...]» (KAYSERİ §2a), with hypercorrected <tà> for /la/.

Here too belong:

- /alantall(i)-/ ‘precinct’ (4 tokens)
- /alawan/ ‘area’ (or /alawa-/ ‘household member (?)’? (2 tokens)
- /alada-/ ‘place’ (1 token)

Payne, Annick, Bauer, Anna (2023): Hieroglyphic Luwian /alant-/, LOCUS-la/i-za (eDiAna-ID 2458). In: eDiAna. (URL: <http://www.ediana.gwi.uni-muenchen.de/dictionary.php?lemma=2458>) last visited on 28/08/2023.

Consequences of <la/i> <lá/í> as /ala/

á-lá/í- and Kubaba (9 tokens)

1. Deity Ala? (Rieken & Yakubovich 2010:203-4). See Hitt. ^d*Alā-*
2. Hurrian allai- ‘lady’, so Lady Kubaba? (Hutter 2016).

<lá/í> in this environment is non-geminate, so choose option 1, the deity Ala.

Consequences of <la> as /alla/

New lexemes and/or better readings

- *a-la-mi-ní: dat.-loc.s. of /allamminna/i-/ ‘city’, ‘fortified settlement’ (KARAHÖYÜK § 1, Goedegebuure fc). For stem *alla/i- ‘strength’, see proposed derivational base of /allummi/ ‘strongly’ and /allummi-/ ‘to strengthen’ (always spelled PUGNUS-..., see Payne, Bauer 2022)
- |á-la-na: acc.s.c. of /alla-/ ‘oak??’ (ERKİLET 2 § 1), not deity Ala (or ‘lady’), which is spelled with <lá/i>.
- za-la-(na): read /zalla(n)/, not /zala(n)/ (7x). Should we therefore connect these adverbs with Luw. zalla- ‘movement, speed’?
- |ha-la+ra/i-la = /hallaralla/?’ (AŠŠUR a § 10)

Observations and conclusions

1. <la> used (1) for /alla/ when /a/ precedes, (2) for /l/ or /ll/ when /i/, /u/ precedes, (3) when no vowel precedes, i.e., in clusters.
2. <la/i>, <lá/í> used (1) for /ala/, but (2) not for /il(l)a/ /u(l)la/, (3) nor in clusters except <la/i> in /hutarli-/.
3. So: (1) the absence of preceding /a/ prevents the use of <lá/í>, <la/i>
4. (2) except that especially <la/i> can be used to express /li/

Observations and conclusions

1. <la> used (1) for /alla/ when /a/ precedes, (2) for /l/ or /ll/ when /i/, /u/ precedes, (3) when no vowel precedes, i.e., in clusters.
2. <la/i>, <lá/í> used (1) for /ala/, but (2) not for /il(l)a/ /u(l)la/, (3) nor in clusters except <la/i> (and <lá/í>) in /hutarli-/.
3. So: (1) the absence of preceding /a/ prevents the use of <lá/í>, <la/i>
4. (2) except that <la/i> (less so <lá/í>) can be used to express /rli/ (not †/rali/)

WHY?

Observations and conclusions

WHY?

It may have to do with the development of the script: L.319 <la/i> (< Empire L.416) and L.172 <lá/i> originally represented /li/ (Hawkins 1995: 26-28) and /ala/ (Rieken & Yakubovich 2010: 200), respectively.

In the Iron Age scribal tradition these signs must have been chosen to spell all /ala/ (some /a(l)li/, and some /li/) sequences, pressing <la> into the service of writing /ll/ when preceded by /a/.

So, is Melchert (2019) correct about Luwian aphaeresis of foreign names that start with /ali/, but not for those with /ala/?

Consequences of <la> as /alla/

Explaining ha-tu+ra/i-la and PUGNUS.PUGNUS-la-

1. HİSARCIK 1 § 5: a-wa/i |á-wa/i-^a |ha-tu+ra/i-la-^a PUGNUS.PUGNUS-la |tu-wa/i-na |si-sà+ra/i-li-na |ku+ra/i-ti-sá SERVUS-lá/i-na
2. /hadura-/ means ‘health’ (Waal 2021). */haduralla/i-/ is its adj. ‘healthy’, and verb /haduralla-/ is the factitive of ‘healthy’. Imp.2s. of such factitives end in /a/ (Sasseville 2020: 20).
3. 1st p.s.pr. PUGNUS.PUGNUS-iwi, 2nd imp. PUGNUS.PUGNUS-i. so PUGNUS.PUGNUS is -i-stem (Sasseville 2020: 152).
4. -i- stems very often derived from -alla/i- adjectives or nouns. <la/i> can certainly be geminate if it is /li/. So PUGNUS.PUGNUS has stem /...Cli-/ or /...alli-/ if based on noun/adj. */...alla/i-/.
5. Only the latter explains PUGNUS.PUGNUS-la in HİSARCIK 1 § 5. This form is the imperative of a factitive /...alla-/ based on adj. */...alla/i-/, with geminate l, and means ‘make safe’ or the like.
